The Reporter begins its articles leading up to the April 20 Island Council elections this week with the first interview with the wife of one of the leading political parties (page 21) and a guest editorial examining the environmental plank in the platforms of the two front running parties (page 8). In upcoming weeks there will be interviews of the other top candidates' wives and more commentary. Readers are invited to participate.

► In response to the soaring fuel prices, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines has increased its fuel surcharge by 5 Euro (about NA$12) to 55 Euro per stretch on long-haul (intercontinental) flights. This increase will be applicable also on tickets issued in the Netherlands Antilles and Aruba. In the last couple of months this surcharge was reduced on a number of occasions. The surcharge has also gone up on flights within Europe.

► Two weeks ago the DAE airline began flying to Caracas. The Caracas flight is twice a day during the week from Curaçao and once a day on Saturday and Sunday. The flight will have "seamless connections" with DAE's Aruba and Bonaire flights.

► Ever wonder how much it costs to run a medium size passenger jet?

Sprint Airlines, one of America's fastest growing low-cost airlines, figures it's $10,000 to $12,000 per day. In the past Bonaire officials were courting Florida-based

Atom bomb to the industry?

Spirit to fly to Bonaire. Spirit just added flights to Aruba. Spirit says it will add 12 more destinations in 2007.

Spirit, classifying itself as an "ultra low-cost carrier," said it lowered its fares by as much as 40% in March, but as of June 20 will begin charging passengers from $5 to $10 apiece for their first two checked bags and $1 for juice, soda, coffee and tea. The fee will be jump to $100 for a third checked bag. The checked bag fees are separate from excess weight fees for checked bags weighing more than 50 pounds. If successful this will be an "atom bomb" to the industry said an aviation insider.

► From March 20-24 officials of the US Transportation Security Administration (TSA) monitored security arrangements at Bonaire's Flamingo Airport. Airport operations, catering, cargo and other operations were scrutinized to ensure they met the regulations involving airport security.

According to an airport press release the results were hopi positive (most positive) and the TSA officials were hopi satisfecho (very satisfied).

► There is a lot of (cruise ship) interest in Bonaire, says Tourism Corporation Director Ronella Croes. "We noticed that during the Seatrade Cruise Shipping Convention. We had a stand there and a bigger delegation was present; a more active approach."

Based on this interest it was estimated that 91,000 cruise tourists will visit Bonaire in the 2006/2007 season, and about 156,000 in 2007/2008. Bonaire received 40,000 to 50,000 cruise tourists in the past top years, about the same number as fly-in visitors.

Croes says that the product Bonaire offers, the need for new islands on the cruise ships routes, TCB's good support and the Harbor Office's service to the cruise ship companies have played an important part in this growth.

TCB also conducted a survey that indicated that the average cruise ship tourist spends $50 to $100 in Bonaire. "Cruise tourism has direct revenue for several sectors in our economy. A fee per passenger will be introduced next season. This means extra income for the island," she added.

► We have received several reports that there is significantly increased interest in Bonaire from Dutch buyers searching for a second home.

There was a considerable presence of Bonaire realtors and developers at the recent Utrecht Home Show. It seems that with the prospect of closer links with the mother country, Dutch buyers are more comfortable with the prospect of living abroad. A survey taken at the show indicated that half of the persons attending would consider relocation outside of The Netherlands.

► On Monday, March 19, the Customs Service's only boat was set afire by unknown persons while on a trailer at the Harbour Village Marina awaiting repairs and was a total loss. The Central Government has been asked to provide funds for a new boat.

► Last week Bonaire hosted the new State Secretary for Antillean Affairs, Anke Bijleveld-Schouten, who will be responsible for the Bonaire's transition from an Antillean territory to a Dutch municipality. She participated in numerous meetings with government officials about the new state structure, environmental organizations and social organizations.

As the photos show she had a full agenda and met with everyone from the Prime Minister to the sea turtles.

► In a joint press release the governments of the Netherlands Antilles and the Consul General of the US to the Netherlands Antilles announced that diplomatic notes have been exchanged that bring into force the tax information exchange agreement between the Netherlands Antilles and the US. The Agreement was effective on March 22, 2007.

The tax information exchange agreement exemplifies the close and long-standing relationship between the Netherlands Antilles and the US. Alex Rosaria, the State Secretary of the Netherlands Antilles, said, "With the signing of these tax information agreements we have made another step forward in our joint efforts to implement the principles of transparency and our commitment to high international standards regarding the global financial markets. These tax information agreements are important instruments to counter the abuse of the financial system such as tax fraud, money laundering and the financing of terrorism."

You might also say it's a kunuku about 3 km east of the Rincon road in the Bolivia Plantation.

Bubbles from the Biologist

Did You Know... that there are more fish on reefs with mangroves nearby than reefs with no mangroves nearby?

Scientists have believed this for a long while, but it was finally investigated and found to be true (article in Nature magazine, Mumby, et al., 2004). Many of you are familiar with the importance of mangroves, but many of you are not and are wondering what all the fuss is about.

First of all, mangroves are trees that grow in or near saltwater. They have all sorts of adaptations that allow them to tolerate salt, unlike most flowering plants. In a nutshell, mangroves are important because they: protect the shoreline from storms; protect the reefs from sediments and nutrients that heavy rains bring from land; serve as habitat for many juvenile reef fish; have very high species diversity; are very productive; are becoming more important for tourism in the form of kayak and snorkel tours; provide habitat for many bird species; are also an excellent place for boaters to tie up to during hurricanes (perhaps not so much here, but very much so in other locations); and I could go on and on. Bonaire doesn't have extensive mangrove systems and so all the more important to protect what we have. □ Story & Photo by Caren Eckrich

► SELIBON, Bonaire's waste management company, issued a release apologizing for the smoke coming from the landfill off Lagoen Road. While there is no danger from the fire to the surrounding neighborhood, they acknowledged that the smoke was a bother. The fire appeared to be deliberately set by persons unknown. At press time there was no sign of more smoke.

► Visiting tourist Paul Rueckert gave us this photo of the wind generator at Sorobon being dismantled. It has been on the spot for about 10 years and never functioned. It is to be replaced soon with a much more powerful wind turbine.

► The Social Services Department (SASO) reminds interested parties that the PP cards issued to low income people require renewal now. All cards expired on March 31. Cards are still available until April 5 from 8 am to noon at SASO offices at Kaya Italia 18, Playa Pariba.

Recently it was alleged that PP card privileges were being used by residents of SABEDECO, one of Bonaire's most upscale neighborhoods.

► The Foundation that assists persons with disabilities, the FKPD, is planning a big Mother's Day fund raising party at Don Paranda. It's on Friday, May 11, beginning at 8 pm. Three musical groups and a dance group will entertain and bar, snacks and salad are included in the NA/50 price. Tickets are now available from FKPD staff and at Angelo's and the Bonaire Bookstore in downtown Kralendijk. We will continue to remind readers of this event on the Happenings page.

► If you are using a first stage from a scuba regulator to fill flat tires, like many people on Bonaire do, and do not have a 2nd stage attached, it is possible, if the first stage fails, to have the hose explode. Carib Inn has a limited number of pressure relief valves at $10 each to protect both you and the hose. These are small and simply screw into one of the LP ports on the first stage. Carib Inn, just south of the Divi resort, is open from 8 am to 5 pm every day.

► Last Friday the Board of Foundation Bo Mes Nego-shi met at Salsa restaurant with Mr. Fedde Pronk, Managing Director of Rabo-Bank Heerenveen, The Netherlands, who is a Board member of the Hessel De Vries Foundation.

Mr. Pronk presented the Bonaire's BNM foundation a check of Euro 25.000 (NA/59.000) from his foundation. These funds will be used for the good work the BMN Foundation does helping Bonaire's micro-entrepreneurs.

► After riots broke out last week in Curaçao's Bon Futuro prison, management invoked emergency measures. It applies to all the cell blocks, but in cell blocks 5 and 6 the prisoners are not allowed to air, and they eat in their cells, said prison warden Bartholomeus Andrea. The measures will last for three days but can be extended by Justice Minister David Dick. The reason for the riots was the decision of the prison management to confiscate 38 laptops after they learned that a video clip of the prisoners, created within the walls of Bon Futuro by the prisoners, was published on the Internet. The prisoners demanded their laptops back and started a protest.

During the protest, the prisoners of block 2 broke doors and started fires. The anti-riot squad of the prison used teargas to suppress the riots. Pepper spray had to be used the next day to keep the prisoners in special cells under control.

Officials said that the laptops will not be returned to the prisoners. The warden says that the prisoners have abused his confidence, while the Minister said that under these circumstances, laptops will no longer be tolerated in prison. He also said he's going to investigate how the prisoners had access to wireless Internet.

► On Sunday, April 1, the SoDePo (Sosiedat Deportivo Polisial) organized a bicycle trip (Paseo riba baiskel) in and around the city of Kralendijk. Some 40 bike riders joined the event. Food and drinks were supplied by the organization. The oldest participant was aged 68, the youngest was only two. She sat on the carrier of her father's bicycle. A dog also joined the event. He did the distance on foot.

She is the first female Assistant Ranger and has had experience in the Antillean Coast Guard. We wish her success in enforcing Bonaire's environmental protection laws.

► Due to logistical problems the Bonaire National Marine Park postponed the next round of the Nutrient Monitoring Program until the end of April. The fifth round will take place from Tuesday April 24 to Saturday April 29.

Nine sailors including veterans Elvis Martinus and Patun Saragoza participated. Freestyle superstar Taty Frans finished first in about 45 minutes. Following him was Jaeger Sint Jago. In third was Choko Frans, Taty's young brother. Elvis Martinus started the race but came home in the chase boat. He said, "I took my rod and reel on my board. I did get one strike of a wahoo, but I lost it, so no new (speed) record was set."

Fire Brigade Visits the SGB High School

On Friday, March 23, a crew of the Kralendijk fire department, supervised by Mr. Frans Francees, visited SGB with a big fire truck. They were invited as part of the TKL3D and TKL4D chemistry classes to give a demonstration of combustion. The students had learned that there are three important conditions for combustion: fuel, oxygen and heat (also called the ignition temperature).

First the firemen explained how to handle different kinds of fires and how to extinguish them. For example when a house is on fire, the fire can best be extinguished with water in order to lower the temperature of the burning parts of the house (the fuel). When the fuel is cooled down enough, the fire will be stopped eventually. It is a different story when one is dealing with gasoline/oil types of combustion, for instance when a frying pan is on fire. Trying to extinguish the fire with water only makes it worse and the opposite will occur.

It will give rise to giant flames that can reach the ceiling and could result in the house completely burning down. Just cutting off the supply of oxygen by putting the lid on the frying pan can extinguish the fire. This was demonstrated by the Playa firemen, setting a barrel with a mixture of oil and gasoline on fire and then extinguishing it in two different ways. First, foaming water was put into the barrel to cut off the air supply. The same result was achieved by suffocating the fire with a carbon dioxide extinguisher.

At the end there was lot of opportunity for the students to ask questions and to be shown different firefighting equipment like the breathing mask.

STRAIGHT TALK

It's all about dating, love, sex, friendship, and marriage - so let's talk. Email (betty@bonairenews.com) your relationship questions to my attention. reporter@bonairenews.com.

Betty Wills

Question from: Doubting man friend

Dear Betty, I read your advice about dating, and I have a difficult problem: Here comes this pretty girl asking me for sex. She knows that I as a bachelor have several women friends because she comes with her young friends often enough in my big yard to play with the swing and the hammock in the shade and cool breeze under the big old tamarind tree. I told her go find a boy her own age, but she said she tried some of the boys and they don't know how to have sex at all, she wants a man with experience. Normally developed she said she is 17 going 18, but I have my doubts. She keeps trying to arouse me with her husky voice and sexy moves although I think she is not even half my age. I am 32. She has seen the condoms next to my bed when she goes to the bathroom and she knows that I did my vasectomy, some time ago I explained her and her friends all they need to know about family planning. Now I fear she will get pregnant or worse when she goes with any young boy if I don't give it to her. She is eager, curious and naturally ready for sex. What shall I do? What is the age of consent in the Caribbean? Nature does not ask for age when the girl wants it. What can stop her?

ANSWER: Just say "no", then take two aspirins and a cold shower to reduce swelling. You'll be just fine. It appears you recognize the girl is an adolescent, but you sound a bit confused over your responsibilities. To begin, having a vasectomy doesn't make you personally responsible for controlling the world's population, nor is it your moral or social obligation to provide sex to adolescents or naive young girls who try to seduce you, regardless of whether or not you use condoms, and practice safe sex.

Sex is best served when shared between two people in love, and it deserves reverence and respect. Granted, humans are "naturally ready for sex" as soon as they reach puberty, but that doesn't mean you must act on it. Dying also comes naturally, but most would rather mature first.

JOKE OF THE DAY

Ask any man, and he will tell you that any woman's ultimate fantasy is to have two men at once. While this has been verified by a recent sociological study, it appears that most men do not realize that in this fantasy, one is cooking and the other is cleaning. □ BW

Pet of the Week

Here's a happy pair: Amber, a volunteer at the Bonaire Animal Shelter, with a very contented dog, "Queenie." One of the reasons the volunteers are so important is to play with and "socialize" the cats and dogs. And if you wonder whether it's appreciated just take a look at the expression on Queenie's face!

Queenie is about eight months old. She's smart; she's energetic and she just loves attention. She was brought into the Shelter because her owner couldn't look after her any more. Now Queenie is looking forward to a new master or mistress who has time for her. With the right training she will learn quickly and make a fine watch dog too. She's a dog you can have fun with. As are all the other pets at the Shelter, Queenie has been examined by the vet, is in excellent health, had had her tests and shots and is ready to go. You may see her at the Shelter on the Lagoen Road, open Monday through Saturday, 8 am to 1 pm. Tel. 717-4989. □ LD

BONAIRE ON WHEELS

A series of Bonaire Reporter articles by J@n Brower, featuring some of Bonaire's interesting vehicles that are "on wheels."

The Big Blue Buggy

Claus' sky blue sprayed buggy can often be seen parked along the Julio Abrahams Boulevard, just opposite The Old Inn restaurant. Claus H. Neumann is the owner of The Old Inn, the Tropical Inn hotel and the recently opened Tropical Divers.

Claus is a passionate man: he loves diving, he loves the island of Bonaire and he loves his Porsche powered blue painted buggy. "I bought this fun car on our island. The chassis they used to build this buggy is from a 1967 VW Käfer (First lesson in German: VW Käfer, pronunciation as: Vow Way Kay Fur/jb) They had to cut the chassis into two and shorten it to fit the fiberglass body. My buggy is powered by a two-liter, air-cooled, four-stroke, four-cylinder boxer engine. In an earlier life this engine powered a Volkswagen-Porsche 914, that typical low rectangular shaped two seater with the targa top, built in the 70s. My Porsche engine is specially tuned and fitted with two huge carburetors, producing over 200 horsepower. Of course this car has rear wheel traction. The light alloy rims are fitted with 275/16R15 inch XP2000 General tires to cope with the power plant. This car is really fun to drive. I love the open air feeling and the freedom of this car. I really enjoy the sound produced by the four independent exhausts. This is a very basic car. No roof, no doors, just one window, no comfort at all!"

On Bonaire, Claus' buggy is one out of, maybe, five. There is another blue one, and a red one has been spotted. One buggy is "under construction" at the SGB high school. Claus' buggy is a real eye catcher, fitted with an impressive spoiler, a custom made state of the art aluminum fuel tank, fat tires, funny winking original Porsche head lamps and an attractive mermaid sprayed on the front.

The Porsche power has always been in the family. Claus' father and brother also owned Porsches. And even Claus' Harley Davidson, a Dyna Superglide built in 1994 and fitted with a 1340 V-twin evolution engine, was remodeled by... Porsche!

Within a few weeks the blue thunder will be re-sprayed. The new color will be diving yellow, of course. The car will carry the logo of Tropical Divers. The ever lasting car will continue his life as a rolling billboard. □ J@n Brower

Especially valuable if you own or plan to buy property on Bonaire

Oceanfront hotel construction, particularly on an island without beaches, like Bonaire, results inevitably in serious damage to the surrounding coral reef. It is impossible to prevent this damage, and in this editorial I hope to show a direct correlation between the hotel construction and the reef health.

It is disappointing that the detailed Pourier Commission Report of 1992, which has been a crucial instrument for forming the Bonaire development policy, is being practically ignored by the leaders of the both current main political forces on our island – UPB and ADB, which, in spite of all their differences, are united in their conviction that the construction of new hotels will be beneficial to our island. According to the Pourier Commission Report: The local government’s task is to protect Bonaire’s unique environment, mainly its 52 km long coral reef. Although the ADB Action Program 2007 speaks also about the environment protection, you will not find the word “reef” in it. The report emphasizes that an overwhelming majority of Bonaire’s inhabitants take the presence of the reef for granted, not realizing its importance for the island.

However, the foreign investors and tourists must become aware of the enormous value of the reef which is increasing every day. A considerable reimbursement can be asked for the opportunity to enjoy this environment product in proportion to the government efforts to protect it. The report goes even so far as to recommend a limitation of hotel rooms and diving. In no case, must mass tourism be promoted. Fortunately, the absence of beaches on Bonaire is the best guarantee against mass tourism. The report concludes that in case the reef is seriously damaged or disappears completely, it will inevitably mean the end of tourism on Bonaire.

During the current election campaign, UPB is already recruiting Latin American labor for realization of its plans for hotel construction, as can be seen in a following report on the Internet (translated from the Dutch and abbreviated):

03/17/2007: “Booi is Looking for Construction Workers”

“Last week, the UPB’s leader Ramonsito Booi met with a large group of Spanish-speaking immigrants in the Antriol neighborhood center. The meeting was organized to interest the foreigners in temporary work in the construction sector. The additional foreign employees are necessary because in the near future the construction of a number of hotel projects will be started. The purpose is to register the interested persons in a databank so that they can be recruited from abroad at the given time.”

As far as the word “temporary” is concerned, thousands of workers, living already long years on Aruba, came there only for temporary work.

The opposition leader, ADB’s Jopie Abraham, emphasized that the “registration” is not an action of the government but of the UPB because the registration would take place in the UPB party Headquarters and not in a government office.

It is clear that, without any development plan for Bonaire (!!!), UPB has firmly decided to start the construction soon of a “number of hotels.” Till now we have heard only about the Divi Sunset all-inclusive and about a hotel school without any indication where this school is planned to be built. In my opinion, in case the government really starts the construction of other hotels besides the Sunset Divi, the construction of the Esmeralda Hotel on the south coast, shown, must be completed. In its present condition it is an eyesore to everybody. However, without any doubt, when completed, this very well and tastefully designed hotel building on an ideal location can become the most beautiful resort on the island!

The fact that ADB has the same erroneous ideas about new hotel construction like UPB is clear from the following statement in the “ADB Action Program 2007,” Chapter 4, Economic Development, 4.1. Tourism (translated from the Dutch): “Action Point 4: Expansion of the number of hotel rooms through bringing in the international hotel chains with emphasis on ecotourism and ‘convention’ tourism.”

If the leaders of the UPB and ADB took time to compare all advantages with disadvantages of the new hotel construction for the Bonairean people, they would discover that the whole effort will bring more problems than benefits. It seems that both party leaders have closed eyes, not seeing that the current economy of Bonaire already now, before the planned influx of foreigners in connection with the construction and operation of the new hotels, depends in its main sectors - construction, tourism and hotel industry - for its main part on foreigners who just came to ease “temporarily” the local labor shortage. Besides the often mentioned problems (pressure on infrastructure, housing, schools, medical facilities and others), the influx of Spanish speaking immigrants will undercut the importance of Papiamentu like it is currently happening on Aruba where Spanish is becoming the No.1 language on the island. The effect will be much greater on Bonaire with its only about 10,000 Papiamentu speaking persons.

One of the few advantages of the hotel construction could be the received taxes (in case the government will be so wise not to grant any tax holiday to the foreign hotel chains). A limited number of local managers in lower positions will, like on Aruba, get an opportunity to work in the new hotels. The top management will always stay in the hands of foreigners (and the profits will be transferred abroad) and the overwhelming majority of the operating staff will be from various Latin American countries.

Even if, according to the ideas of the UPB and ADB, the hotel construction would bring some advantages for the island, there is no doubt that it will bring serious damage to our coral reef, Bonaire’s main asset. A necessity for every new, high standard hotel to be built on Bonaire is a good sandy beach. Although it will be an extremely costly operation to construct such a beach, it is, according to my own professional experience, technically feasible. Many thousands of cubic meters of sand, dredged from the sea bottom, far from Bonaire, can be brought in and spread in a layer of sufficient width and thickness on the coast in front of the planned hotels in order to create an artificial beach. Unfortunately, after a shorter or longer time period, nature restores its original balance, taking the sand away by wave action and sea current. In order to maintain the beach, a so-called beach nourishment must be executed regularly. It seems that the designers of the mentioned Esmeralda hotel had this fact in mind by creating a sheltered lagoon in front of the hotel, instead of constructing a beach directly on the exposed coast. You don’t have to be a marine biologist to realize that, not only during the beach construction but also during the subsequent beach nourishment, loose, fine sand particles, suspended in the sea water, form a sedimentary layer on the coral reef. It inevitably leads to its death, certainly in the section adjacent to the new beach.

The government should also not underestimate the possible actions of environmental groups which can prevent an artificial beach construction like happened on Curaçao in 1993, where a joint effort of Reef Care, Defensa Ambiental, Amigu di Tera and Pro Monumento Foundation, all fiercely opposing such a project, succeeded in halting the work on the beach and in a definitive abandonment of the Marichi hotel plans. The hotel chain started a procedure against the island government which finally had to pay to it an amount of many millions for damages caused by not fulfilling its commitment (For details see my article “Broken Promises can be Expensive” in the October 7, 2005, issue of The Bonaire Reporter). □ Jiri Lausman

Bonaire Windsurfer Reports

EFPT Toro Andaluz 2007

After about four months of lots of training time in Turkey with no competition at all, the time finally arrived to hit the European Freestyle Pro Tour (EFPT) again.

The European Freestyle Pro Tour kicked off in the southeast part of Europe in Spain, Andalusia-Tarifa, known as pretty warm, windy and the windsurfing capital of Europe. For many years people have traveled to this windy spot to practice windsurfing. And yes, they still do today. Back then it hosted many windsurfing championship events.

My sail sponsor's factory is also located there. Actually it was a good time to visit for some testing and work on some new development skills and designs for our slalom and freestyle sails. The freeride sails and the wave sails have won several magazine tests and so did the freestyle and the slalom sails, and things are just getting better and better at The Loft owned by Monty Splinder, one of the most experienced sail makers you can find nowadays. (For more info surf to www.loftsails.com)

This year is the second year that we had the first EFPT stop in Tarifa. All the riders were happy to meet each other again. Everybody was super excited to battle out for the first points at this event. Again we had some new entrees on the EFPT which is very positive and I am sure more will follow in the next events.

Day 1

Skippers meeting at 10 o'clock and the conditions did not look too promising for this day.

Wind from the right (Poniente) 7-10 knots and sunny clear skies. The start was postponed every hour until the end of the day. It was a super relaxing day for all of us. Some of the riders even organized a happy hour at the end of the day where we all sat down and chatted about our winter trips and off season experiences.

Day 2

Started off in the morning with a mellow breeze which did not look too good for the day. The sky was partly cloudy and temperature was a bit chilly.

Everybody took it easy. After lunch time the sky started to clear up and the wind started to kick in. Some guys went out to

Krusa Laman —The International Literature Festival of Sint Maarten, Aruba, Bonaire and Curaçao

This third edition of the International Literature Festival, Krusa Laman, is a celebration of languages. Winternachten, which organizes it, is an annual literature festival in The Hague, the Netherlands.

Since 1995 the central aim of the festival is to encourage the development of intercultural relations between the historically related countries: Indonesia, South Africa, Aruba, The Netherlands Antilles, Suriname and The Netherlands. It brings together writers, poets, storytellers and musicians from these six historically related countries. The group of artists traveled from Sint Maarten, Aruba, Bonaire and Curaçao. Nukila Amal from Indonesia and Jit Narain of Suriname performed together with local writers and musicians on each island. All writers read in their mother tongue while their texts were simultaneously projected in the local language: English or Papiamentu.

The poetry, prose and stories on Bonaire were performed by Babeba Baderoon (South Africa), Frans Booi, Monica Clarinda, Annie Francees (Bonaire) and Ramsey Nasr (Netherlands/Morocco)

Crossing the Seas is organized by Winternachten (Winternights) in co-operation with Zeus Foundation, the island Government of Sint Maarten, and Philipsburg

Jubilee Library (Sint Maarten) Fundashon pa Plannifichashon di Idioma and Roland Colastica (Curaçao), Bibliotheca Nacional Aruba and Wim Rutgers (Aruba), Kas di Arte and SKAL (Bonaire)

The artists landed on Bonaire on March 26 and were welcomed by a group of students from the SGB VWO 4 and Havo 4. The evening at Kas di Arte began with a performance of the musical group, Glenn i su Geng. The evening's presentation was hosted by Roland Colastica and Jacky Bernabela.

A star of the show, popular singer Izaline Calister, was accompanied by Ed Verhoeff on guitar and Pernell Saturnino. □Photos & story by Wilna Groenenboom

"Crossing the Seas," as seen by an SGB high school student

On the 26th of March we went to welcome the writers for the third Crossing the Seas festival. They were Ramsey Nasr from The Netherlands; local writers Monica Clarinda, Annie Francees and Frans Booi from The Netherlands Antilles and Aruba; Jit Narain Baldewsignh from Surinam; Nukila Amal from Indonesia; Gabeba Badroon from South Africa; and local singer Izaline Calister from Curaçao. They were welcomed by the HAVO 4 and VWO 4 classes of the SGB high school and Dutch teacher Helen Chan. I welcomed them with a short poem, then after we all went our separate ways.

On the 27th the writers came to the SGB high school for a special presentation with

Izaline Calister performing

MCs Hipolita Stein, Lujairo Gomez and Laurensz Hauer. The writers gave a short presentation of their work and Izaline sang two songs in Papiamentu. Then the writers were led to separate classrooms so that the students could have sessions with them and ask questions.

I led Mr. Jit Narain Baldewsignh to a classroom where we (four different groups from different classes) could ask him questions for a special project that Miss Chang had given us. He read a few pieces from one of his books and explained some of his poems.

On the 28th I and my group members, Dariza Jansen and Judeska Ricardo, gave our presentations of how we found the Crossing of the Seas and our session with Mr. Jit Narain and a little about his work. We found the festival to be great, fun, and cool and we got to know a lot about Jit Narain. We even got his autograph.

I would really like to be a part of this festival again in 2009. □Gideon Williams

Kas di Hadrey Antique Living Houses of Bonaire Preserving Bonaire's Architectural Heritage

by Wilna Groenenboom

Located in Rincon on the corner of Kaya Rincon and Kaya Commerce, this beautiful old house, a Kas di Hadrey (house with porch), can be recognized by the rain gutter around the house and the roof decorations (dakpoppen) on the saddle roof (dak di hefe). This is the first house in Rincon in this series. At the moment it's not inhabited, but because it has so many interesting details it's impossible to ignore and not write about it. The house needs some massive restoration before people can live in it again; probably this will happen in the course of this year.

The house catches our attention by its central place in the heart of Rincon at Plaza Commerce, across from the post office, literally a part of the Rincon Marshé every first Saturday of the month.

As usual, determining the right age of a house is difficult. The first record appears with the selling of the property on August 27, 1868. "By decision of the Government of Curaçao" the ground was sold to Theodorus Mool. In 1915 the house built on the property was sold to Lourens Frederik Simon van der Dijs.

In 1926 Johannes Vindicianus Schermer (b. 1878) and his wife Maria Pitronella Ellis

(b. 1879) bought the house and rented it out until 1934. For a period it even served as a government office where civil marriages took place. In 1934 their eldest son, Johannes Facundo Schermer (b.1903) married Antonia Ulpiana Martinus (b.1912) and they moved into the house. They had five children: John Gerard, Richard Patricio, Maria Ana, Emma Atanasia and Antonio Humercindo. Because of an old Bonairean Catholic tradition, each of the children's second names was that of the saint's on the day they were born. The names could be found in the Bristol Almanac which was part of nearly every Bonairean household. On their 25th wedding anniversary the Schermer family had this photo (above) taken in Curaçao.

There are two main buildings and a barn on the property. On the Kaya Commerce side is a "façade" of a small wooden building (Kas di tabla). Emma Schermer knows that it was always there so it must be more than 70 years old. Throughout its life the

Kas di tabla has housed a medical practice, health center, hairdresser, policeman's home, a toko or mini market, and most recently a kind of storehouse of one of the Schermer sons who was an electrician. In the façade we see holes where a little roof on the street side used to be.

On the right side of the house there was a storehouse and a garage where they parked their Willys, a car made in Canada, imported from the US, one of the first cars in Rincon. In the storehouse was produce from their kunukus: goat meat, goat skin, dried watapana fruits, aloe, corn, pumpkins, watermelons and beans - which were sold in the Kas di tabla - not only for the local market but also for Curaçao.

From this income, combined with Johannes Facundo Schermer's salary as a lighthouse keeper they could pay for their five children to go to school in Curaçao. In those days there was no secondary education in Bonaire.

This is, in many ways, an unusual Kas di Hadrey; its porch (hadrey) is at the back of the house rather than the front. It also has very beautiful white braces (decorations) above each shuttered window and door, which is also very unusual (photo middle and right above). These braces also appear on the wall of Johannes Facundo Schermer's parental home in Rincon on Kaya Kontento where he grew up and on a house on the seaside of Playa Pabou in Kralendijk, Kaya J.N.E. Craane.

The five half pillars on the façade of the main house define each window and door.

But perhaps the most interesting feature is the stone structure on the outside walls on the left side of the main house. This section is younger than the rest; it wasn't built of coral like the main house but was made from cement. Each layer of this "cement stone" was made in a form like they use today. Each form is one foot high. To construct a two-meter wall you will need seven forms. Afterwards the walls were decorated with a fake stone pattern made with a metal form with a certain relief on it. A small layer of cement was put in the form and placed on the wall. The wall of the Protestant Congregation of Bonaire on the Kaminda la Union 43 was built the same way but with a different pattern (photo under the Kas di tabla).

This side of the house is designed in a "cubistic" style. Above the shutters we see only a horizontal decoration; the white braces are missing. The chimney has a simple cubistic look. And behind the checkered window (photo right below) is the kitchen.

Because of all these different and unusual details, this house is like a diamond in the heart of Rincon, and because of its dignity and worth, in my opinion it should be placed on the list of architectural monuments of Bonaire. □Story & photos by Wilna Groenenboom

Kontest di Fli

Memories of Willemstad

Bonaire's 29th Kontest di Fli (kite contest) took place last Sunday at the field behind Kooymans'. Every year it's been sponsored by Iris Semeleer of the Flamingo Bookstore on Kaya Grandi and every year it's a huge success. Families, friends and all kinds of groups get together to build the most amazing kites, and often it takes a whole crowd to launch them. It's a wonderful, wholesome atmosphere. Groups of families and friends set up with chairs and tables, food and drink coolers, and have a social good time while watching the spirited competitions.

Competitors came from Aruba, Bonaire and Curacao.

Thanks to the organizers, especially to Iris Semeleer of the Flamingo Book Store, and to all the sponsors without whom the event wouldn't have happened. □L.D.

Easter Underwater

According to my dive buddy Bob Mankoff, there are few proofs of the existence of God greater than the beauty and intricacy of the coral reef. For Christians, the Easter holiday brings to mind some non-traditional symbols of the crucifixion, burial, and resurrection of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, which can be viewed underwater by scuba divers.

The soldiers led him away into the hall, called Praetorium; and they call together the whole band. They clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head, and began to salute him, Hail, King of the Jews! They smote him on the head with a reed, and did spit upon him, and bowing their knees worshipped him. When they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him. (Mark 15:16-20; King James Version)

The Legend of the Sand Dollar

There's a pretty little legend
That I would like to tell
Of the birth and death of Jesus
Found in this lowly shell.
If you examine closely,
You'll see that you find here
Four nail holes and a fifth one

Made by a Roman's spear.
On one side the Easter lily,
Its center is the star,
That appeared unto the shepherds
And led them from afar.

The Christmas poinsettia,
Etched on the other side
Reminds us of His birthday,
Our happy Christmastide.
Now break the center open,
And here you will release
The five white doves awaiting
To spread Good will and peace.

This simple little symbol,
Christ left for you and me
To help us spread His Gospel
Through all eternity.

In a more secular vein Paas Maandag, or Easter Monday, is a holiday for both Dutch children and adults who celebrate the occasion with many kinds of egg games. Eierrapen, or hunting for colored eggs hidden by their elders in house or garden, is a favorite pastime of the younger children, while eiertikken, or hitting together hard-boiled Easter eggs, is the day's real sport for boys and girls of all ages." □ David Colvard, M.D.

try out the conditions and it seemed to be getting better and better. The event organizers and judges got ready and fixed up the competition area. At the same time I was being interviewed by the EFPT Tour Manager. See www.efpt.net/news:Black Pearl interviewed - another nickname invented by the EFPT crew.

After I finished my interview I went to the beach to check out the elimination ladder because the wind was kicking in. I was automatically advanced through the first round to the next round because of a good seeding this year. So I had to wait a little bit longer before I could start.

Finally my heat arrived and I was facing Fabian Webber from Germany (G-999); the wind was not super strong. I used my Reptile-Mast Python in my Loft 360Free 5.2 on the I-style 104liter board, one of my favorite combinations. I performed a smooth routine and tried to impress the judges more.

I took the victory over Mr. Webber and moved on to the next round facing another German trickster Norman Gunzlein (G-186) this time. I tried to pull out more technical maneuvers, but I was struggling a bit because of the wavy conditions here in Tarifa. Norman took the win and moved on to the next round, the quarter finals, leaving me stuck in 5th position on the single elimination ladder.

The final heats were sailed at a very high level, with the surprising performance of Polish Champion Jakub Kosmowski (POL-288) who is definitely hungry for the title this year. But Andre Paskowski (G-2) kept it on the safe side and completed more moves than his Polish opponent. It was a day full of freestyle action at the Tore de La Pena camping event site. It was followed by an invitational party downtown.

Day 3

A relaxing morning and the wind was not enough to start the double elimination.

After lunch time the wind started to pick up a little bit, but the event organizer decided to run a super session for the media and press. The guys were showing off some of their best moves on 5.7 and 6.0 square meter sails. In the late afternoon the award ceremony was held on the beach, followed by a little celebration and happy hour.

Final results of the EFPT Toro Andaluz 2007 :

- 1 Andre Paskowski (G-2, F2/North)
- 2 Jakub Kosmowski (Pol-288, Tabou/Gaastra)
- 3 Cheo Diaz (V-34, Fanatic/North)
- 4 Norman Gunzlein (G-186, JP/Pryde)
- 5 Ruben Petrisie (NB-50, Exocet/Loft)

Next up is the first Slalom event of the Euro Cup down in the south of France, Leucate. This will be my first slalom event after I stopped back around 2002. Now I am getting back into it. This season I will compete in some slalom and freestyle events around Europe.

Slalom Racing is where different rounds of eight sailors start together, cruising through the start line at the same time. Slalom racing can have different course formats. Nowadays the downwind slalom format is mostly used. Sailors have to turn/jibe around four marks (buoys) and the four fastest ones who make it to the finish line advance to the next round until we have the final of eight winners.

Thanks for reading. Look out for the next one. □

Concert For BJJ Youth Care

BJJZ, Bonairiaanse Jeugd zorg (Bonaire Youth care) had a fundraising concert aboard the cruise ship Freewinds. BJJZ is the organization which oversees needs of children ages 6-13, similar to SEBIKI for ages 0-6 and Jong Bonaire for 12-18 year olds.

Traditional Bonairean costumes, instruments and musical folklore filled the stage when the first performers, SEBARI, a group of 17 colorfully dressed children and young adults from Sentro di Bario Rincon, started singing. Their delightful music explains why they won at the Krioyo Festival and even performed for Queen Beatrix. These musicians are not only talented, they are motivated. They want to get their own sound equipment and make a CD.

The next group, Duo Shining Stars, Gilberto Martis and Syphard Willem, may only be 16 and 17 years old, but their voices are full-grown. These talented young artists began performing when they were very young. They were awarded first finalists at the recent Duo Fest and Their wish is to promote Bonaire internationally and to become professional musicians.

"Freddy G.," a surprise guest brought in by Shirley Martis of the èxtra newspaper, kept the audience in high gear. He lives in Holland, but he has a very special Bonaire connection: he married the daughter of Mrs. Cecilia "Chichi" Evertsz, a well-known poetess on Bonaire. "Freddy G" and his group spirited the audience to participation in his gospel songs.

For Jon Hilgers, teacher at SGB, a wish has come true! "This is so great! It's the first time I've gotten to perform my compositions with a professional band!" He and Duo Lotus partner, Martina Gerling, were winners at the DuoFest where she was the youngest performer. They will also attend the Caribbean Gospel Festival in Curaçao this May. Dressed in white and wearing their signature straw hats, they serenaded the audience with their winning song, "Silent Place," after beginning their set with the beautiful, "When I Change into a Star." Throughout the concert, MC Lupe Uranie energized the cheering audience.

Besides the talented performers and Freewinds personnel, many people and businesses contributed to this successful fundraiser for BJJZ. A big "thank you" goes out to sponsors Scarlet's Flower Shop, Donna & Giorgio's, èxtra newspaper, Movie-land, MCB bank, Sedrebo bus, and Insel Air.

"I am very happy with the concert," exclaimed Suitberta Romero, BJJZ coordinator who organized the event. "I had hoped the audience would enjoy our music and they loved it! Tonight we raised almost NAf4.000 for our activities. We do get some money from the government, but we have to fund raise the rest."

□ Barbara Bianculli

About BJJZ

BJJZ's job is to stimulate, motivate, and educate youngsters between the ages of 6-13 years. Right now, Suitberta and her administrator, Irene Winklaar, do the work, but in April a much needed addition will start. Mientje Ietswaart will join the BJJZ and coordinate activities like Mothers' Day, Fathers' Day, School Vacation Week and others.

BJJZ has presented sexual education courses to some 6-11 year olds.

Many parents are pleased to have this as an opening for discussions with their children. In September 2006, BJJZ and GVI (Guia di Famia) sponsored "E Herencia" ("The Legacy"), an educational musical comedy performed by a group from Aruba. Children from the elementary schools came to watch this performance and to learn the ways of avoiding sexual abuse. They memorized a great song about saying "No!" running away, and telling a trusted adult. Many children still sing this song and remember the lesson.

Sometimes BJJZ works directly with the children, but other times they assist adults. Suitberta Romero envisions BJJZ as an information center for parents or others who work with children. BJJZ also adapts existing training programs for parents to enhance and support them in the education of the children. BJJZ has a website for information and an email for preguntanan (questions) about raising and educating a child. One initiative, a website link to FAQs should assist people in getting help. □ Barbara Bianculli

Candidates' Wives Speak

Marisol Cleopatra Petra Dirksz-Winklaar

Beginning this week are interviews of the woman behind the man of the party leaders of Bonaire's three contending parties: PRO headed by Benito Dirksz; UPB, led by Ramonsito Booi and the PDB's Jopie Abraham.

All the women will be asked similar questions. Elections take place following the publication of the last interview.

Born April 27th, 1975.

Religion: Catholic.

Education: MBO (Middle Professional Education) accountancy employee.

Career: "I moved with my parents from Bonaire to Holland in 1977 when I was two. During my school years I worked all kinds of jobs; I delivered newspapers and I also cleaned buildings. I came back to Bonaire alone in 1994 when I was 19 and started working for Playa Trading. Then I worked for a construction company, and by the end of 1995 I began working for Special Security Services as a clerk and I am still working there. When Benito isn't here, I am the manager."

Relationship with Benito Dirksz since: "Eleven and a half years and coming April 19th we'll be married for 10 years."

What made you fall for him? "He has tons of energy and shows a lot of interest. He's also a man of detail and little attentions like sending flowers now and then or calling: "I was thinking of you..."

What do you think made him fall for you? "I never really thought about that... One time he told me: "When I got to know you better, I wanted to go on with you."

Children: "I have three children; Bernadette, better known as Beneatha, is eight years old and she is mentally handicapped. Then there is Benedict who's going to be seven this month and Elijah who's going to be two in May."

How much are you involved in your husband's political work? "I am present everywhere; I organize meetings, gatherings - I mostly do the organizing part of the party."

What is to you the most important issue on PRO's party program? "The new structure we're heading for - a direct tie with Holland - is no problem for me, but the negotiations should be done well. There has to be a balance and everyone should be able to live with it."

What does the island mean to you? "Peace and tranquility. In spite of the fact that we're leading a hectic life here nevertheless it's so much quieter compared to Holland or the US."

What would you like to change? "There should be more activities for children, for youth, something like Jong Bonaire, but accessible for everyone. And more education possibilities. I think it's time they should change the government. Further, I don't think Bonaire should change so much."

What would you not like to change? "I don't want the traffic to increase. I certainly would not want us to be driving here in a year or two, bumper to bumper, like they do on St. Martin. And another thing I would not want to change is the free access the people have to their beaches, to the sea."

What's your opinion about the situation of the Bonairean women? "They should become more emancipated; they're too dependent on their man. I can take myself as an example. Sometimes I have to ask Benito five times before he does a certain thing, but by that time I've done it already myself. The Bonairean women should be more in control and stand up for themselves more often and when violence is used against them, they should report it."

What's the most important thing in your life? "My children."

How do you see your future? "Since Benito has taken the first step, I think we'll be staying in the political arena and personally I would like to become more professional in the security field. All in all, I see it rosy."

How do you see the island's future? "I don't know what the future looks like; we don't know what's waiting for us after all

"What's your opinion about the situation of the Bonairean women?"

"They should become more emancipated; they're too dependent on their man."

these reorganizations."

What's the best thing you want to see when Holland takes over? "That welfare facilities and social laws on the island will be improved."

And the worst thing in your opinion? "When tax laws will be interpreted the same way as they are in Holland. In that case I fear everything that's going to happen. Also I am afraid they will introduce the EURO the same way they did in Holland - what used to cost one guilder suddenly became one EURO but one's monthly salary of 2.000 guilders was all of a sudden worth half."

What's your strongest point? "I am a go-getter. I don't give up and when I've set myself a goal, I'll reach it, whatever it costs. Sometimes Benito is annoyed by it, but that's his problem."

What's your husband strongest point? "He's a go-getter. He goes for the full 100%. He doesn't give up easily."

How do you spend your time together?

"If we are home together by coincidence, we watch a movie or we're busy with the children. Sometimes we go out for dinner or we just don't do a thing, but those are rare moments, especially now."

Do you have girlfriends of whom you know that they are not voting for your husband? "Yes, I've got one; her father is Papy Cicilia."

What's the influence of the negative sides of your husband's work on your life?

"Your private life is put under a microscope and is being discussed in public. That's the most annoying thing about sharing your life with a political figure."

How do you see life? "Life in itself is a wonderful thing, but you have to learn how to fill in your time and also you have to make time for yourself."

What do you think about the situation of youth on Bonaire? "It's alarming; so many kids who don't finish their education, teenager pregnancies, criminal youth, broken families, mothers who have to take care of the children all alone and while they are working all day long nobody is looking after the children. I think the main thing they're missing is, first of all, their parent's guidance and after that guidance at school. There used to be social control, but not anymore. There should be well-trained professionals who know how to handle youngsters at the sentros di bario and more facilities for youth to go to and it should be subsidized by the government."

What does your own life look like?

"Now it's very busy. I have three small children and I'm working full-time at SSS. I am on the board of the athletics federation and I'm on the board of FUDEBO (a foundation that's going to produce school materials in Papiamentu for Bonaire in the future). I am in the parent's council of Kristu Bon Wardador elementary school and I represent the parents in the education platform."

How important is the environment to you? "Important; especially here on this little island. I really admire what SELI-BON is doing on Bonaire and I also think their campaign to make the people aware to keep the island clean is very good."

What do you think about development and growth? "The island could grow a bit more, but 20,000 people would be the maximum for me. I would like to see more work possibilities, but factories for instance would also bring pollution and I don't want to go that far. The more pollution, the more corals will die and then we won't be a diver's paradise anymore."

How do you feel about foreigners liv- ing here? "I have no comment about foreigners and makambas (Dutch people) as long as they stick to the rules. Some makambas, especially those who come with their pockets full of money, like to belittle the Bonaireans. Until now I personally never experienced that with Americans."

What do you think about the situation of the elderly? "Some live in a deplorable situation. We need more homes for the elderly. And how can someone live on NA/550 per month, what is supposed to be the old age pension? No, the care for the elderly people should be strongly improved."

What is the Bonairean identity? "Real Bonaireans are humble people, but there aren't that many anymore. The true Bonairean is very hospitable. They're not envious, and there's no neighbor rivalry like on Curaçao."

What responsibilities do parents have towards their children? "They have to feed them, dress them and give them the right norms and values. You have to give them lots of love and attention and make sure they get a good education."

What would you like to have become? "A singer, if... I would have had a good voice! Benito always says that if I would have to make a living as a singer I would starve to death!"

How do you cope with the fact that your husband is a public figure? "I am used to it."

What are your hobbies? "I like to read, to swim and to sing even though it's out of tune!"

What does friendship mean to you? "Friendship means that I can trust someone blindly, through thick and thin."

What was the best time you ever had with your husband? "A cruise we went on. We've gone twice, but once it was just the two of us and that was fun."

Does your husband give you the space to do

DIVING with DEE “Just” a Snorkeler

It is much easier to take photographs when on scuba than when snorkeling, at least for me. This young spotted moray is being cleaned by a shrimp on his underside.

I enjoy talking to the people who come to my slide shows, and of course we often talk about marine animals. One thing I've noticed: if people are not scuba divers, they almost always describe themselves as “just snorkelers.” And they always act a little sheepish, as if they expect me to think less of them because they're merely snorkelers, not scuba divers.

At first I didn't understand why they thought I'd think less of them if they were “just” snorkelers, but since I began swimming using mask and snorkel but not fins three or four times a week, the answer became clear. On the dock, me in bathing suit and with mask and snorkel, the divers in wetsuits and with all their gear, the divers almost always treated me like they'd treat, say, a seven year old. As they discussed what they'd seen, a polite one might ask me, “Did you have a nice snorkel?”

Heh heh. Twice in the last six months,

I've seen a stingray as I swam on the surface. One was a spotted eagle ray, foraging in the shallow sand not far from the mooring at Cliff, completely undisturbed by my presence. The other, a Southern stingray, was near town. It swam from the shallows to the dropoff, passing no more than 15' behind two scuba divers – who never saw it, and never looked up to see me excitedly gesturing. Oh yes Ma'am, I had a very nice snorkel!

From the surface with my mask and snorkel, I once saw a gray snapper zoom up and gobble down a sergeant-major. I've watched a batfish stalk prey. Sea turtles are unconcerned by my presence, as are spawning parrotfish and wrasses. The surface is the perfect vantage point from which to watch a school of mas bangu (bigeye scad) flow around a gang of horse-eye jacks.

In water too shallow for a person wearing a tank, I've had tarpon brush up against my fingers, and watched mating octopuses (in the interest of science, of course). Once I saw two chain morays pulling on opposite sides of a dead fish, like puppies with a rope toy.

Just because I saw these things snorkeling doesn't mean that I wouldn't have seen some of them if I was diving, of course. But on scuba you're down there with most of the creatures, close to the reef. The two divers the stingray passed behind were just below the dropoff, and the ray was swimming close to the bottom, inshore of the dropoff. Even if the divers had looked toward the ray, the reef would have blocked their view of it until it came to the dropoff. From the surface I saw it all.

On the other hand, sometimes it's much better to be on scuba and closer to the reef. I sure don't have the breath-holding skill to be a cleaner station client (always being careful not to make contact with the reef at all) when I'm snorkeling! It's easier for me to do fish or coral bleaching surveys when I'm scuba diving. And swimming through tight schools of scad, with them all around you, is wonderful in a different way from when they're below you.

Last month I met Fred Calhoun, a gentleman from Massachusetts who reminds me very much of Captain Don Stewart. Fred tells his students, “It's not how deep you dive that makes you a good diver, it's how often you dive.”

About critter watching, I'd paraphrase Fred and say, “It's not that you watch underwater animals, it's how much time you spend watching”. And then I'd add, “It's also nice to watch from different perspectives.” Scientists have been studying tropical rain forests from the ground for decades but are delighted to have come up with ways to observe forest animals from the treetops. As scuba divers, we should appreciate how easy it is for us to get that perspective!

I noticed this little eel peeking out of a bottom crevice in about 10' of water. Turns out it's a color variation of the goldentail moray. I snorkeled down to get the photo, which meant I approached from above, which is disconcerting for morays; that's why the eel is mostly in the crevice.

So feel sorry for the people who are “just” snorkelers in the same way you feel sorry for those who are “just” scuba divers – because neither can see the underwater world from the other's perspective. Rather than being one or the other, expand your horizons and appreciate both.* □ Story & photo by Dee Scarr

* As I wrote this last paragraph, I thought about all the places I've been – in the Caribbean and the Pacific -- where the scuba diving is fine but the shallow waters are relatively barren, or where the waters are too rough for comfortable snorkeling. We are fortunate to enjoy Bonaire's healthy reefs and protected shorelines! □

The Goddess of Love Visits the Seven Sisters

On Wednesday evening April 11th the planet named for the Roman goddess of love, will pay a very close visit to one of the loveliest star clusters of them all, The Pleiades, the Seven Sisters. And you can start watching them get closer each night beginning this weekend. Let me show you.

The Pleiades

This Saturday April 7th, about one hour after sunset face west where you will see super bright 8,000-mile-wide Venus, aptly named for the goddess of love because it is the brightest and most beautiful of all the naked-eye planets. It's the brightest because in addition to it's being so close it is the most reflective of all the planets because it is enshrouded in a perpetual cloud cover which acts like a gigantic mirror reflecting sunlight back to Earth. But besides being beautiful to the naked eye, if you have a small telescope you will notice that Venus appears to go through phases just like our Moon.

But something special has been added this Saturday because if you have fairly dark skies you will see a tiny cluster of stars called The Seven Sisters, although most people can only count six with the naked eye. Some people think this cluster looks like a tiny dipper or a cluster of grapes, but in western tradition they are known as the seven daughters of Atlas who ride across the sky on the shoulder of Taurus the Bull and whose bright red eye, Aldebaran, can be seen up and to their left. Now on Saturday the sisters will be only five degrees away from Venus. On Wednesday night the 11th, they will be at their very closest, only two and a half degrees or five full Moons apart, which astronomically speaking is close!

And good luck abounds because if you're clouded out on Wednesday, on Thursday they'll still be only two and 3/4 degrees apart. And on Friday the 13th, only three degrees apart. But the best night is Wednesday night! And to add to your viewing pleasure also use a pair of binoculars because you'll be able to see a lot more than seven sisters here. In fact we now know there are really about 100 stars here in a sphere 14 light years in diameter, 400 light years away, wow! Unlike our five-billion-year-old Sun these stars are extremely young, only 70 million years old. That means they were born only five million years before the dinosaurs got wiped out by a giant asteroid. So get out this weekend and start watching Venus and the Seven Sisters as they move closer and closer to each other each night.

And now if you want to be underwhelmed by a full Moon: the full Moon on Tuesday night next week will be the farthest and thus the smallest and least bright full Moon of the entire year. In fact it will be 252,481 miles away from Earth at 5 am, which is over 30,000 miles farther away than the closest full Moon of the year on October 26th. Even so it will still be pretty bright. Finally, please note that on Easter Sunday morning April 8th, people attending sunrise services will see a beautiful gibbous Moon forming a wonderful triangle with Jupiter and Antares. □
